Republicans at Washington Can Not Countenance Acts of Usurper.

Washington. February 8.—The death of Goebel was not unexpected, but nevertheless the news came with a distinct shock. The opinion is gaining ground that shock the shooting of Goebel was part and parcel of a plot in which the republican leaders of the State were, more or less, involved and that some part of it had its inspiration here in Washington. Nobody, of course, links the National republican leaders with the assessmanton, but it is believed their bad advice to the Kentucky the bad break of some ignorant mountain republican in resorting to his favorite method of warfare assassination.

it will probably never be known how deeply the republican governor or other republican leaders were in the plot that resulted in Goebel being shot down from ambush, but the circumstantial evidence la all against them.

President McKinley will not send Fed- following proclamation: eral troops to Frankfort. Indeed, there is To the People of the Commonwealth of every indication that nowhere is Taylor being quite so heartily reviled as within the inner sanctums of the republican party. The idea that one of the leading democratic attorneys the legislature is supperme to attrengthened throughout the Goebel-Taylor contest, and by the subsequent provision in the consti-tution that neither house can adjourn for more than three days at a time, or meet in any other place without the consent of the other. The action of Taylor, therefore, in direct contravantion with the terms.

Congressman Wheeler of the First district summed up the situation in this way:

"Of course Taylor, who can no longer exercise any lawful authority, and his coborts, may refuse to ober the law, but it he does he will be held responsible. The act of Taylor in adjourning the legislature and refusing it outrance to the State contitution. And that he should order the legislature to convene in London, a place which he and his party have declared a lawless community, where law and order does not exist, would seem to indicate that Taylor was determined to bave completed that which the cowardly assassins, confined in the executive mansion and protected by the so-called Taylor militia, faffed to do."
